

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention provides an insulator having a main component of silicon dioxide, wherein the insulator includes at least one kind of organic polymer such as benzene nucleuses distributed therein in order to reduce a dielectric constant thereof as well as a method of forming the same.